Introduction

*I*N 1895 the Vermont Marble Company began permanently to employ trained nurses at Proctor and West Rutland to attend cases of sickness among its employees and their families. The success of this work encouraged the Company to extend it by providing a hospital for its employees. On August 6, 1896, the first hospital was opened. It was located on the west side of South Street in the Village of Proctor and accommodated ten patients.

The rapid growth of the work and the satisfactory results obtained from the outset rendered it necessary to provide a larger and more modern building. Consequently the present building was built and equipped by the Company and was opened for the admission of patients April 1, 1904. It is located on Ormsbee Avenue in the eastern part of the Village of Proctor, faces south and west, and commands a fine view of the surrounding country.

The operating room, accident room, surgeons' consulting room, and etherizing room, and the matron's office and the nurses' living rooms are in the Administration Building. Connected with the Administration Building by a glass corridor is the Ward Building. This is built of rock faced marble with partitions of fire proof tile, plastered upon wire lath, and is throughout of fire proof construction. The entire hospital and its equipment, and especially the operating room, is thoroughly up-to-date and embodies the latest approved devices in use in the newest hospitals in our large cities. It accommodates eighteen patients.

The hospital is intended primarily for the benefit of the Vermont Marble Company's employees and their families, but others and especially residents of the community where the different branches of its business are located will be admitted as pay patients. It is the Company's desire that the people of these communities should be interested as generally as possible in the conduct and success of the hospital. Its management has accordingly been committed to a representative board in accordance with the annexed By-Laws.

.. The income received from pay patients is used for the expenses of the hospital, the balance necessary for its maintenance being furnished by the Vermont Marble Company as necessity demands.

Hospital Rules for Patients

I. No patient shall be admitted to the hospital except upon certificate of some member of the medical staff approved by at least one member of the Committee on Hospital Service.

II. In cases of accident or other emergency, the matron may admit a patient without certificate, and report the admission and reasons at once to the Committee on Hospital Service.

III. No person suffering from smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or delirium tremens, shall be admitted, unless some surgical operation shall be required.

IV. No person suffering from a chronic or incurable disease shall be admitted, unless there are urgent symptoms, which, in the opinion of the verifying physician, can be relieved.

V. The Committee on Hospital Service shall determine whether a patient shall be a free or a pay patient; and, if a pay patient, shall fix the rate of board, which to employees of the Vermont Marble Co. and their families shall not exceed $4.00 per week, except in confinement cases, when the rate shall be fixed by the Committee on Hospital Service. This charge covers board, lodging, nursing, medicines, surgical dressings, and all expenses except the services of the attending physician.

VI. No person shall bring, or cause to be brought, into the hospital for the use of a patient, any article of food, without the consent of the matron; nor shall the use of tobacco, wine, or intoxicating liquor be allowed, excepting under the direction of the physician in charge.

VII. Patients shall have the privilege of receiving visits from their friends when permitted to do so by the physician in charge, or by the matron, subject to such restrictions as shall be deemed necessary and proper.

VIII. The matron, if the discipline of the hospital shall require, may, with the approval of the Committee on Hospital Service, discharge a patient for misconduct.

IX. Visitors to patients will be admitted on any day in the week, from two to three and from seven to eight P. M. No patient will be allowed to see more than two visitors at one time.

X. Patients may employ private nurses, subject to the approval of the matron, and shall pay for their board at the rate of five dollars per week.

XI. Any patient desiring the assignment for exclusive service on his case of a certain nurse from the student nurses shall pay for this privilege at the rate of ten dollars a week.

XII. The terms for patients not in the employ of the Vermont Marble Company, and their families, are twelve dollars per week in the wards and fifteen dollars per week in the private rooms. Such patients will be required, upon entering the hospital, to deposit with the matron charges for two weeks, unless payment is guaranteed by some one whose guarantee is acceptable to the committee. When two weeks have expired another two weeks' advance payment must be made.

XIII. Out-patients, when not suffering from accident, shall be subject to the following charges for treatment at the hospital: for operations requiring ether, three dollars; for operations not requiring ether, two dollars; for ordinary dressings, twenty-five cents per dressing.

XIV. A charge of fifty cents a call will be made for nurses sent to give baths or rubs in chronic cases.

Training School for Nurses

A training school for nurses in connection with the hospital was opened October 1, 1898, for the purpose of providing better nursing service for the hospital and for district work, and to furnish instruction and training to women desirous of becoming professional nurses.

The course of training occupies two years, beginning October 1st, of each year. Prior to entrance upon the course, a probationary period of three months must be spent in the hospital, during which time the fitness of the candidate is determined. For that period the candidate will receive no remuneration.

Instruction is given in Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry and Hygiene, and in the theory and practice of preparing food. Instruction and thorough training are also given in all departments of hospital work, both in the wards and in the operating room; in district nursing and in the nursing of private patients in their own homes.

Student nurses are paid eight dollars per month during the first year, and twelve dollars per month during the second year. Board and laundry are furnished throughout the course. Four weeks vacation are allowed each year.

Applicants must be between the ages of twenty and thirty-five years.

Applicants must possess a good common school education, and physical capacity to undergo the labor and fatigue attendant upon the profession of nursing. They must present on application a certificate of good character from some responsible person, and also a physician's certificate as to physical fitness.

When the full course of two years has been completed in a manner satisfactory to the matron and to the Executive Committee, a diploma is given each nurse certifying to the completion of the regular course of training and practice. A class-pin is also furnished each graduate.

Request for application blank, or for further information may be made to MARION E. GREEN, Matron, Proctor, Vermont.

Regulations Governing Student Nurses

I. The student nurses are subject to the control of the matron of the hospital, who, in cases of misconduct, can suspend them from duty, and will then report the case to the Executive Committee for final determination.

II. Student nurses must hold themselves in constant readiness to answer immediately all summons, and must cheerfully accept all assignments to service.

III. When at service the school uniform must be worn.

IV. Student nurses will be expected to prepare, when necessary, and always to serve the food for their patients.

V. Student nurses must bear in mind the importance of the duties they have undertaken, and evince at all times, self-denial, forbearance, gentleness, kindness and good temper. When nursing in families where there are no servants, if their attention is not of necessity wholly devoted to their patient, they are expected to make themselves generally useful. They must be careful not to increase the expenses of the family. They are most earnestly charged to hold in sacred confidence the knowledge, which to a certain extent they must obtain, of the private affairs of such households as they may attend.

In contagious cases, special prices may be made, not to exceed $1.00 per day additional. All travelling expenses must be paid by the family employing the nurse. A bill for the amount due will be sent by the Superintendent when the service ends.

2. Nurses for obstetrical nursing may be retained at half price until actual service begins, but if the time of waiting extends over two weeks full price will be charged for such extension.

3. Nurses must be allowed reasonable time each day for rest and recreation in the open air and when employed for several consecutive nights must be allowed at least six hours each day. Except in cases of extreme need, they must be allowed to attend church once each Sunday. The nurse must not be expected to share a patient's bed.

4. Nurses, when on duty, must always wear the dress prescribed by the school.
